MEXICAN BAILOUT

(Mrs. SEASTRAND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Speaker, yesterday was a truly historic day in the House of Representatives. Last night we kept our promises to the American people and passed a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution that will force very real, very fundamental change in Washington.

So I chose today to point out the futility in telling Americans we will balance the books in Washington, but as early as next week Congress may vote to bail out Mexico to the tune of $40 billion in loan guarantees.

I will only make two points. First, we Republican freshmen were elected with an agenda to take the concerns of the taxpayers to Washington. It does not include bailing out Mexico or Wall Street investors.

Second, there is a fundamental principle in economics. You get more of what you subsidize. We should not subsidize bankrupt economic policy.

I don't know who is more to blame, the intellectual dishonesty of the Mexican Government in dealing with America, or the intellectual bankruptcy of the Clinton administration who devised this scheme. The taxpayers will recognize this is not only bad politics, this is bad policy.

INTRODUCTION OF BILL TO BALANCE THE BUDGET BY 1997

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, as my colleague from the other side just spoke, yesterday this House took action to try and bring the Federal budget in balance by the year 2002. While some may have disagreed with this process, that does not mean the debate ends there. It means that we have to go further.

Last week I introduced a bill, H.R. 567, which would require the President to submit and the Congress to act on a balanced budget beginning in fiscal year 1997. If we are truly serious, and many Members last night said they were serious, about bringing the budget into balance, then they should start working on it now, and as I said repeatedly in this House, we should bring the American people to the table and talk about how we are going to do it, because we will never accomplish a balanced budget without bringing the American people into the debate to find out where the cuts have to be made.

I would urge my colleagues to join with me and to sign on H.R. 567. I urge the committees to take it up. Let us bring this legislation to the floor.

NO PESO PROP UP

(Mr. TIAHRT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, the administration is calling for $40 billion in loan guarantees for our neighbor to the south. We have been lobbied by the high rollers in the administration and from the Federal Reserve to gain our support for the peso prop up.

Once again the working families are requested to shoulder the burden of bad judgment. Once again the backbone of this Nation is asked to not only feed their families but also feed greed of the international bankers.

Like a drunk returning to the bottle our neighbor to the south returns to the taxpayers for this peso prop up, with a promise that this time it is different. A promise to increase taxes and
